While fulfilling its major role regarding the fight against a range of security threats, such as: terrorism, organized crime, international migration, financial crisis, cross-border crime and so on, the European Union registers multiple challenges in its constant actions to reduce the triggers of specific threats and vulnerabilities.

In this context, the Doctoral Schools of "Law" and "Public Order and National Security" within the Police Academy "Alexandru Ioan Cuza" organize the International Scientific Conference „New Challenges related to Internal Security within European Union - the eighth edition”.

The scientific event will bring together distinguished representatives from several national and foreign university centres and represents an opportunity for participants to present their scientific communications as a result of the research undertaken in the field of Internal Security within European Union.

Constantly connected to the current challenges of scientific research in its specific competence area, the Police Academy "Alexandru Ioan Cuza" has the honour and the pleasure of addressing the invitation of all those interested to attend the International Scientific Conference „New Challenges related to Internal Security within European Union - the eighth edition", which will take place on December 11, 2019.
